4. In the discussion that followed, the group decided that the methodology was not our primary concern. The organization for planning is far more important, and whatever entity assumes the planning role will want to refine or tailor the methodology. [REDACTED] noted the importance of linking the planning function with the budget process. [REDACTED]

small group of 3-5 people might be the most viable approach. We will present a range of options to the ISB, each with its associated costs and benefits, and our recommendation on one of the options. [redacted]
